The first part of the paper discusses the general theory of the firm, focusing on the relationship between the firm's size and its performance. It is argued that larger firms are able to exploit economies of scale and scope, which leads to higher productivity and lower costs. This is particularly true for firms in industries with high fixed costs and low marginal costs.

The second part of the paper examines the role of government in the economy. It is argued that government intervention is necessary to correct market failures and to provide public goods. However, government intervention can also lead to inefficiencies and distortions in the market. Therefore, the government should focus on providing a stable legal and institutional framework for the market.

The third part of the paper discusses the importance of human capital in economic growth. It is argued that investment in education and training is essential for the development of a skilled workforce, which is necessary for the growth of a modern economy.

The fourth part of the paper discusses the role of innovation in economic growth. It is argued that innovation is the primary source of long-term growth, as it leads to the development of new products and technologies. Therefore, the government should encourage innovation through various policies, such as providing research and development subsidies and protecting intellectual property rights.

The fifth part of the paper discusses the importance of financial markets in economic growth. It is argued that well-developed financial markets are essential for the allocation of capital to productive investment opportunities. Therefore, the government should focus on improving the efficiency and transparency of financial markets.

The sixth part of the paper discusses the role of infrastructure in economic growth. It is argued that infrastructure, such as roads, bridges, and ports, is essential for the development of a modern economy. Therefore, the government should invest in infrastructure development.

The seventh part of the paper discusses the importance of social institutions in economic growth. It is argued that strong social institutions, such as the rule of law and property rights, are essential for the development of a modern economy. Therefore, the government should focus on strengthening social institutions.

(cousin)

Anna Peters *

Daughter of Kornelius Peters

Children Bergman:

F1 Helen

F2 Henry (or ~~Herman~~)

Anna had separated from her husband and lived in Kronsgart. It was suspected that Henry belonged to the Communist Party and that he told someone to set fire to the house that his wife and children (with others) occupied, in which they all died. Henry went to Siberia and nothing has been heard from him since the late 1930s.

Referred to as "Scheifkápff Bergman".

got a Lutheran girl in to the family way. She wanted to marry him and got him to see a minister in Schoendorf. He did not want to marry her and saw no other way out than suicide. He went behind the barn and cut his throat.

Father Peter Heinrichs did well. He acquired a steam mill and formed a Company in which he was the manager. A Mr. Andres misused his authority, embezzling a significant amount of money, and fled to America. The firm went bankrupt.

Father Peter Heinrichs did not give his consent to this marriage, so they eloped. There was a child on the way. Peter Rempel was a <sup>frivolous</sup> ~~sleazy~~ man who did not take his words seriously. He often betrayed his wife and lost the wife's fortune. He left his wife in poverty.

She later remarried a widower

Aaron Thiessen of Neuendorf.

The oldest Rempel son had a Russian wife and loved in Rustow.
 He later shot his wife and himself.
